Practical Case-oriented Approaches in Gastroenterology and Hepatology

UC Irvine Health faculty members will share their specialized expertise through formal lectures, a hands-on endoscopy workshop and multidisciplinary case discussions focused on new approaches in the diagnosis and management of gastrointestinal and liver diseases.

This CME course curriculum covers the latest management options and endoscopic and surgical treatments in the following areas: biliary, colon and rectal, hepatology, inflammatory bowel disease (IBD), pancreas and upper GI tract.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?
✓ Gastroenterologists
✓ General surgeons
✓ Hepatologists
✓ Nurses
✓ Primary care physicians
✓ Other allied healthcare professionals

COURSE LEARNING OBJECTIVES:

- Apply the new advancements in diagnosis, classification and treatments that have emerged in the field of liver cancer to improve overall outcomes in patient care
- Discuss anti-integrin therapy in IBD
- Review management of fistulas and abscesses
- Recognize precancerous lesions in the pancreas
- Apply the new therapies that will be most effective in treating patients with hepatitis B and C
- Analyze and evaluate the most important developments in upper GI diseases
- Describe optimization of anti-TNF agents
- Recognize the factors that increase the diagnostic yield or adenomatous polyps during screening colonoscopy
